... unique atmosphere of the historic studs. In emotional pictures the photographer captures the characteristics of the different breeds and also involves the people who work at the studs in her photos. In the exhibition the historic gala uniforms of the different studs were also on view and visitors found themselves standing next to some of the quadrille riders.

In their characteristic uniforms, these people make the history of the studs come alive and are pleased to supply information about their horses, their home and their work.

A visit to the exhibition staged at the European Show Jumping Championship was an informative and worthwhile experience.

Straight off the printing press were also the new Marbach Calendar as well as other calendars for 2008, in addition to posters and postcards with pictures of many different horse breeds.
